Book Synopsis

Ian has always been fascinated with the story of Isaac and Rebecca in the bible and dreams of finding someone who will pursue his vision with him. God directed Rosella's steps and purposefully caused her to cross paths with Ian in different ways. With God in the center of their relationship, Ian and Rosella get drawn to each other. But Rosella is engaged to be married to someone picked by her family.

Will Ian and Rosella ever find their way back? This is a story of love, that has been divinely orchestrated by chance encounters. The story offers hope to people about how God can create Qarah moments in our life to bring to fulfillment the plans he has for us.

The moment she exited from the plane, Rosella plugged on her earpiece. She pushed the trolley towards the nearest chair and plopped herself on it. She placed her handbag on her lap and started to rustle around for Ashley's address. As she was looking for the address, she noticed a man seated next to her from the corner of her eye. He was talking animatedly on his mobile phone.

From the side view, the man looked very handsome and had a dimple on his left cheek. He was dressed neatly in a blue checkered shirt and black tailored pants. She heaved a sigh, wishing her future husband could be someone well dressed like this man. What if he was someone's husband or fiancée? It was really hard to tell these days, and she did not want to be caught up in any drama. She tore her gaze away from him and started rummaging through her handbag again.

Rosella checked her wallet to ensure she had enough local currency for a taxi fare. As she was about to leave, something on the seat of the chair caught her eye. It looked like a card from afar. She flipped it around and saw Driving License spelled out on the top. The name on the card read, Ian Jacobs.

She looked closely at the picture on the card. He looked familiar. "Aayyy" she exclaimed when she realized it was Mr. Fancy Pants who was seated next to her earlier. "Ian!" So, that was his name.
